WHAT IS QLAC

On July, 2014 the Treasury department had issued Treasury Regulations under 1401 (a)(9)-6 that states as long as a longevity annuity meets certain requirements it becomes a

QUALIFIED LONGEVITY ANNUITY CONTRACT

(QLAC) and automatically is declared to satisfy the required minimum distribution (RMD) rules, even though income payments don't begin until later, even after age 70<sup>1/2</sup>.

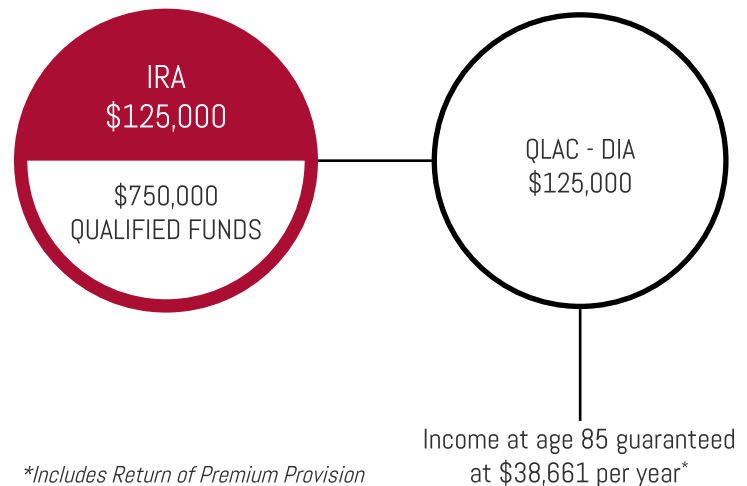

Adding a QLAC approved product to your portfolio can help your clients reduce their RMD amount by up to 25%.

WHY IS THIS IMPORTANT TO YOUR PRACTICE?

Generally, with a traditional IRA, or 401(k), you have to start taking required minimum distributions, (RMD's), soon after reaching age 70<sup>1/2</sup>. Under the new rule, as long as the annuity meets the requirements to be a "qualifying longevity annuity contract", the value of the annuity would not be included in the value of your IRA, or 401(k), or other similar account, when calculating your RMD. Adding a QLAC approved product to your portfolio can help your clients reduce their RMD amount by up to 25%.

QLAC- Example of 65 Year Old Male

Deferred Income Annuities (DIA) are well suited for individuals who anticipate not needing income until later in life due to the fact that they have other income sources. QLAC approved DIA's offer clients the ability to not only defer RMD's until later in life but also a way to reduce their RMD payments overall.

Clients need to be aware that DIA's are not liquid contracts. There is no value above the guarantee income stream they will be receiving some time in the future. QLAC does make available a death benefit return of premium provision. So, if they pass away, the beneficiary receives the difference of premiums paid less any payments.

QLAC RULES

STIPULATE:

- Premium cannot be more than $125,000 or 25% of total IRA amount of individual.
- Income cannot begin later than age 85.
- The $125,000 will be periodically indexed for inflation in increments of $10,000.
- The $125,000 is an aggregate limit that applies to all IRAs of an individual.
- QLAC may offer a return of premium provision.
